The Vietnam Anti-War Movement

Peace Movement/Anti-War Demonstrations

The Vietnam anti-war movement was against the U.S military involvement in Vietnam, particularly in the 1960s. The movements began with peaceful protest and evolved into a mass movement for peace, advocating for nonviolence and the withdrawal of the U.S. troops. The tet offensive in 1968 lead to a wide spread in the protest across the country. The movement's tactics ranged from peaceful protests across the country. The movement tactics ranged from peaceful protest to civil disobedience, and significantly shaped public opinion and government policy.

The anti-war movement demonstrations were crucial in shaping public opinion and influencing government policy. They played a significant role in bringing about the end of U.S. military involvement in Vietnam.

Vietnam Draft Deferments

During the Vietnam War, more than half of the 27 million men who were eligible for the draft were deferred or disqualified. The draft system was highly controversial, especially in the early war, because most men being drafted were coming from poor, working-class, minority populations. The Selective Service System was used to cover the shortfall, and after WW2, the U.S. maintained a "peacetime" draft. The draft calls were doubled in 1965, and local draft boards evaluated registered males for service. The draft system was seen as grossly unfair to segments of the population, especially early in the war.

"Fortunate Son" Song with Lyrics

Fortunate Son was written by John Fogerty in response to the Vietnam War and the inequity of the draft system. The war system of drafting was not typically fair to the rich. Wealthy and politically connected families often could avoid being drafted into the war, while ordinary young men were sent to fight for their country. The song relates to all of this through the lyrics John Fogerty wrote, and Creedence Clearwater Revival song and released it. One specific piece of the lyric says, "it ain't me, It ain't me, I ain't no senate's song." This small piece of lyrics highlights the unfair advantages of privileged individuals. For example, David Eisenhower, the grandson of President Dwight D., was able to evade combat duty.

Cold War Alliances

Nato 1949

NATO stand for North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Nato was founded on April 4th 1949 in Washington DC. It was established to provide security against countries like United States, Canada and Countries in Western Europe. Especially from Soviet Union. It was founded by 12 nations and those were Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, United Kingdom, and the United States. A threat to one of the members is a threat to all of the members and they will defend that country. This made NATO strong because the countries knew they were not alone. At first it was just 12 countries but then more countries started to join for protection. That was United States first time joining a military group during peace that how you know countries were during cold war. Nato still exists till today.

THE WARSAW PACT 1955

The Warsaw Pact was created on May 14, 1955. It was a military group between the Soviet Union and Eastern European countries. They created it as a response to NATO, which is a group of United States and Western European countries working together. The members were soviet union, East germany, poland, hungary, romania, bulgaria and albania. The group was made to protect these countries against NATO. The Warsaw Pact was mostly controlled bt soviet union and they also had more power like they would make the decisions even though they all have to work together and be able to have a say in things. Europe was divided into two sides the east was led by Soviet Union and the west was led by the United States and that caused a lot of tensions between the two. The Warsaw pact ended in 1999 when the cold war ended.

THE U.S AND THE USSR BECOME SUPERPOWERS

After the war, the United States and the Soviet Union became the two strongest and most powerful countries in the world. They called them superpowers because of how strong their armies were and how advanced their technology was. You had a lot of control over other countries and could change what was happening in different parts. They both had different ideas on how the government and business should be. Many countries became weaker, but the United States and the Soviet Union became stronger. The United States believed that people could make their own choices and have their own business and resources. Because they saw things differently, they didn't trust each other and tried to fight for who could have more control over the world. This led to the Cold War, but they never fought directly; they tried to be better than each other by making advanced weapons, technology, and in space.

The New Red Scare

Alger Hiss Case and the Pumpikin Papers 1849

Alger Hiss was a dominant figure in the American government system. He was born on November 11, 1904, in Baltimore, Maryland. Hiss graduated from Harvard Law School and U.S. State Department. Alger Hiss was accused in 1948 of being a spy for the Soviet Union. Whittaker Chambers said that Hiss had given secret government papers to the Soviets. Chambers then showed evidence including microfilm and other documents that had been hidden in a pumpkin in his farm. The papers consisted of 65 pages of retyped state department documents and 4 pages in Hiss's own handwriting. This evidence was called the pumpkin papers. It made people think Hiss was guilty. Hiss denied the accusation, claiming to be innocent and sued Chambers. He was charged with perjury after denying to have given Chambers the documents and denying to seeing chambers after a certain date. Due to this he was sentenced to five years in prison.

McCarthyism 1950s

McCarthyism refers to the anti- communist campaign led by senator Joseph McCarthy in the early 1950's. McCarthy claimed that large numbers of communists and Soviet spies had infiltrated the U.S. government. He often made accusations without evidence but his claims spread quickly because Americans were already afraid of communists. During the time people were called before congressional hearings and pressured to confess or name others as communists. Many careers were destroyed through blacklists especially in Hollywood, education and government jobs. Eventually McCarthy's power declined after the television Army-McCarthy hearing in 1954 exposed his aggressive questioning and lack of evidence. The senator later censured him meaning he was formally condemned. Although his influence ended McCarthyism is still used today to describe unfair accusations and political fear campaigns.

Julius and Ethel Rosenberg 1953

Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were an American married couple that were convicted of spying for the Soviet Union, including providing top secret information about American radar, sonar, jet propulsion engines and nuclear weapon designs. They were later executed by the federal government of the United States in 1953 using New York's state execution chamber in Sing Sing in Ossining. Making them the first American civilians to be executed for such charges and the first to be executed during peacetime. Their case sparked international controversy with supporters alleging they were victims of anti-communist hysteria.

A New Cold War? North Korea

The Cult of Kim Jong UN

The Cult of for Kim Jong un started soon after he was chosen to be his fathers (Kim Jong Il successor. Before he took power, newspapers would cover Kim Jong Un and his appearances with his father. North Korean Media promoted music for Kim called footsteps, and general. Everyone sees him as a fatherly figure, and he takes pride in being called a “fatherly leader”. A big part in his cult is having a portrait in every house or building of himself, it must be dusted, or you can face consequences. If it isn’t dusted the soldiers will tell them they dont find Kim Jong Un valuable enough, and possibly execute them.

North Korea’s Goals

North Korea goal is to maintain the power of the Kim family dynasty. Another goal is to be seen as a legitimate nuclear threat by foreign countries. Another goal for north korea is isolation. They have strict borders and block outside information. This way North Korea can remain in control. North Korea will use nuclear tests to prevent foreign countries from intervening, Reunification with south korea and removal of us military in south korea. Strong relations with russia and china for money and military.

Threat to South Korea and the U.S.

In 1945 after the defeat of Japan, the U.S and the Soviet Union agreed to split the Korean peninsula between them two. On August 10th, 1945 two soldiers drew a line dividing the North and the South. Though this was only supposed to be temporary the cold war made it seminal. They were only supposed to pick one leader for the entire peninsula, but the cold war had other plans. The U.S. took the southern, making Syngman Rhee the leader and the Soviet Union took the north, making Kim Il-Sung the leader.

Cold War Tensions of the 1960's

U2 Incident 1960

On May 1st 1960, United States had a U-2 spy plane take off from Peshawar in Pakistan and it was shot down by the Soviet air defence forces that were in Sverdlovsk, Russia. The U-2 was trying to get photographic aerial reconnaissance inside Soviet territory. The plane was being flown by an American pilot named Francis Gary Powers.

As the plane got hit by a surface to air missile Francis parachuted to the ground and he was captured by the Soviet. The United States were a bit embarrassed because they had thought that Francis had died and that they destroyed the plane and they tried to cover it up but the leader of Soviet Nikita Khrushchev embarrassed the United States President Eisenhower and his administration. This incident escalated tensions between the US and the USSR.

Bay of Pigs Invasion 1961

The Bay of Pigs Invasion of 61 happened on April 17th and only lasted two days, ending on the 20th of that month. It was a failed military landing on the southwest coast of Cuba, by the U.S. and CIA backed brigade 2506 under the Kennedy administration. The operation was aimed at Fidel Castro and bringing down his communist government.

On the 15th of April the U.S. conducted advance air strikes against Cuba and allowed Castro to hide his air force and prepare a counter attack. Of the approximate 1,500 Cuban exiles over 100 killed were killed while 1,100 were captured and imprisoned for 20 months. With this failed operation it only fueled the regime and made Castro a hero and solidified his control over Cuba and pushed him closer to a alliance with the Soviet Union, setting the stage for the Cuban Missile Crisis.

The Berlin Crisis 1961

The Berlin Wall Crisis was a major event in the cold war, occuring on the 4th of June and lasting through to the 9th of Novembver leading to the building of the berlin wall the 12-13th of August 1961. The wall was put up and stayed up for 28 years, to stop a mass exodus of citizens from the East to the West, presumably for a better life under the U.S than the U.S.S.R

ON the 13th of April the East German Police sealed the border, right after having lost 3.7 to 4 million people leaving to West Germany. Allied protest to the Wall was delayed but in Octover in tensions peaked to U.S and Soviet tanks held a tense standoff at Checkpoint Charlie for 24 hours.

The Vietnam War

The Background of The Vietnam War

The Vietnam War started in 1955-1975, it was a 20 year long cold war, due to vietnam desire independence from France rule. Which turned into a massive war between communist North Vietnam (China/USSR) and non-communist South Vietnam.

Vietnam wanted independence due to the fact that France was exploiting them for their natural resources, and this nationalism was spreading worldwide. There was a key figure called Ho Chi Minh who was a soldier that fought the Japanese during WW2 with his group (The Viet Minh)

Events Of The Vietnam War

On the 1950's to the 1960's. The US started sending military advisors to South Vietnam, and at this time the Communist forces in the south called the Viet Cong started using a strategy called guerrilla warfare. Where the point was to weaken the enemys troops by doing hit-and-runs ambushes and sabotages to enemies supply run. There hasn't been any battles, but tensions were high. In 1964, there was an attack on US naval ships by North Vietnamese torpedoes; the US ships retaliated by returning fire and support by aircraft support.

The Outcome of the Vietnam War

The War ended when North Viatnamese soldiers captured saigon (The south Vietnam capital) in April 1975, This event was called "Fall of Saigon". In 1976 North and South Vietnam were officially United as Socialist Republic of Vietnam, led by the communist leader from the North. In 1973, the US withdrew its troops. This was a Lost to the US, the failed to stop the spread of communism.

After the War, millions of civilians and soldiers died, this war caused 58,000 Americans soldier to die and destruction across Vietnam. Also neighboring countries like Laos and Cambodia had battles and communist takeovers after this war.
