

The Economic differences between the North and South

By. Angel Avila, Ismael Fabian
Period 6

Background Information

- 1. What is our topic? : Our topic is the Economic differences between the North and South.
- 2. When did this happen? The north and the south's began having problems in the early 1800s and the civil war began in 1861-1865.
- 3. Where did it take place? It took place in the north and the south states because they were fighting because the south still wanted slavery.
- 4. Why is it important? These economic differences were one of the main causes of the civil war.

MAIN INFORMATION - THE NORTHERN ECONOMY

Economic Differences

- The northern economy was based on industry and manufacturing
- It had many factories and railroads
- 90% of the nation's factories were in the north
- They had large cities and growing population

Important people: An Important person was Abraham Lincoln supported the Northern States.

MAIN INFORMATION- THE SOUTHERN ECONOMY

Economic differences

- The Southern economy was based on farming.
- The southern states had large plantations growing cotton, tobacco and rice.
- The southern depended on enslaved labor
- Cotton was the main cash crop ("king cotton")

Primary source Quote: "Our position is thoroughly identified with the institution of slavery." This quote was said by the Mississippi Declaration of Secession, 1861

Important Facts

- The north had a strong Industrial economy with factories that produced weapons clothing equipment for railroads.
- The south had an agricultural economy they mostly focused on large plantations, growing crops like cotton, tobacco and rice.
- The northern states relied on paid workers and immigrants working in factories and farms.
- The southern relied heavily on enslaved labor which was central to plantation agriculture.

Impact

Why does this matter? This matters because the north and the south had totally different economies and that helped cause the civil war and who had the advantage in the war.

How did it affect the war? It affected the war because of the Northern states industry and money let them make more weapons while the North economy was struggling.

How did it affect the United States in the long term? It affected the United States long term because the war ended slavery and helped push the economy into a more industrial economy.

Multimedia slide

Conclusion

In the end, The north and the south had different economic differences. The north focused on industry and factories, while the south depended a lot on slavery and farming. The differences caused conflict and tension. These differences helped the north win the war. We should remember this because it helped stopped the war and it even helped end slavery in the United States.

Work Cited Page

National Park Service. "Industry and Economy during the Civil War." U.S. National Park Service, 22 Aug. 2017, <https://www.nps.gov/articles/industry-and-economy-during-the-civil-war.htm>.

"Economic History of the American Civil War." Wikipedia, Wikimedia Foundation, 18 Mar. 2022,

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Economic\_history\_of\_the\_American\_Civil\_War.

"Causing the Civil War." Teachinghistory.org, Roy Rosenzweig Center for History and New Media,

<https://teachinghistory.org/history-content/beyond-the-textbook/23912>

Accessed 5 Mar. 2026.